

Fastmarkets MB and Fastmarkets AMM base metals holiday pricing schedule 2018

Fastmarkets MB and Fastmarkets AMM base metals price assessments in 2018 will be published in accordance with the London Metal Exchange holiday calendar, which reflects public holidays in England and Wales.

All prices assessed by Fastmarkets MB and Fastmarkets AMM across the world will not be published nor rolled over during LME holidays (eight days in total this year).

Prices will be assessed between Christmas and New Year on days when the LME is open (December 24, 27 and 28).

Prices that are due to be published on LME holidays will instead be published on the closest working day that precedes or follows that date.

Daily, weekly and monthly base metals prices assessed in Shanghai, Singapore, Brazil and the United States will also follow the LME holiday calendar. This means that they will not be published on UK public holidays but will continue to be published even when there is a public holiday in these countries. Shanghai base metal premiums, for instance, will be published but rolled over during Chinese national holidays.

The pricing schedule also applies to US and Shanghai copper scrap prices as well as UK and US aluminium scrap and secondary alloy prices due to their close relation to LME prices. The notice also includes ferro-nickel which, as an LME-related discount/premium, naturally follows the base metals calendar.

The schedule also applies to the Copper Concentrates index - this is published on every 15th (or closest preceding working day) and every last day of each month. Where the index falls on a UK holiday, publication will move to the closest working day that precedes or follows that date.

This notice does not include bauxite, alumina, nickel pig iron and other minors, ores and alloys or steel prices, which have separate pricing calendars.*
